Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

New Minnow-Casting Reel.

Our Imperial Steel Pivot Reel

WITH INDEPENDENT SPOOL.

Size No. 3.

We have perfected and patented this simple device for throwing a multiplying reel in and out of gear at will.

In casting a minnow or other bait, more force has to be used than really necessary to cast the bait, as so much of the power used is absorbed in starting the handle running, which when started causes the reel to overrun.

This trouble is overcome by our device, which is applied by simply pushing a lever or index one way to ungear the reel, and the reverse way to gear it for reeling in or playing the fish.

This must commend itself to anglers for casting a long distance or for casting a light bait.

Prices, . .	$21.00	$19.50	$18.00 Each.
Sizes, . . .	2	3	3½
		100	75 yds. No. G. line.

This improvement we are also applying to our New Salt-Water Reels. Call and see them.

BLACK-FLY CREAM,

For Repelling

Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

Sportsmen's Goods.

New Minnow-Casting Reel.

Our Imperial Steel Pivot Reel

WITH INDEPENDENT SPOOL.

Size No. 3.

We have perfected and patented this simple device for throwing a multiplying reel in and out of gear at will.

In casting a minnow or other bait, more force has to be used than really necessary to cast the bait, as so much of the power used is absorbed in starting the handle running, which when started causes the reel to overrun.

This trouble is overcome by our device, which is applied by simply pushing a lever or index one way to ungear the reel, and the reverse way to gear it for reeling in or playing the fish.

This must commend itself to anglers for casting a long distance or for casting a light bait.

Prices, . .	$21.00	$19.50	$18.00 Each.
Sizes, . . .	2	3	3½
		100	75 yds. No. G. line.

This improvement we are also applying to our New Salt-Water Reels. Call and see them.

HINDS'

BLACK-FLY CREAM,

For Repelling

Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING COMPANY,
39 Park Row, New York.

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

New Minnow-Casting Reel.

Our Imperial Steel Pivot Reel

WITH INDEPENDENT SPOOL.

Size No. 3.

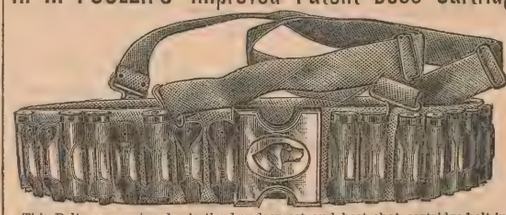
We have perfected and patented this simple device for throwing a multiplying reel in and out of gear at will.

In casting a minnow or other bait, more force has to be used than really necessary to cast the bait, as so much of the power used is absorbed in starting the handle running, which when started causes the reel to overrun.

This trouble is overcome by our device, which is applied by simply pushing a lever or index one way to ungear the reel, and the reverse way to gear it for reeling in or playing the fish.

This must commend itself to anglers for casting a long distance or for casting a light bait.

Prices, . .	$21.00	$19.50	$18.00 Each.
Sizes, . . .	2	3	3½
		100	75 yds. No. G. line.



This improvement we are also applying to our New Salt-Water Reels. Call and see them.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

CREAM,

For Repelling

Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING COMPANY,
39 Park Row, New York.

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, f rod should get wet. Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed through out, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9½ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.35; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. Gunmaking and repairing of all kinds by competent workmen. New Illustrated Catalogue in colors now ready, and sent free on application.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

HINDS'

BLACK-FLY CREAM,

For Repelling

Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING COMPANY,
39 Park Row, New York.

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

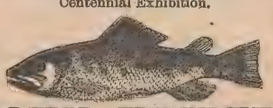
Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."



A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

BLACK-FLY
CREAM,

For Repelling

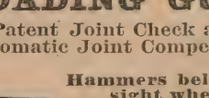
Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.



Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING COMPANY,
39 Park Row, New York.

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, if rod should get wet. Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9¼ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.35; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

BLACK-FLY CREAM,

For Repelling

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

CANOE HANDLING.
By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

BLACK-FLY CREAM,
For Repelling
Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.
Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:
DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.
Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	- Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Specimen Pages Free on Application.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

What the Champions of the World Say:

ELKHART, Ill., Feb. 13, 1884.

J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:

DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

DR. W. J. CARVER,

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, f rod should get wet. Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9½ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.25; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." BLACK-FLY CREAM,

For Repelling

Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Specimen Pages Free on Application.

Allen's Brass Shell Swage
All sizes. Price, $1.00.

F. A. ALLEN, Monmouth, Ill.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:

DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

For Repelling

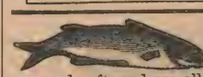
No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:



DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Specimen Pages Free on Application.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, f rod should get wet. Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9¼ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.35; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.

Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:

DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.

Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

HOW CAN A BOOT BE WATERPROOF AND NOT SWEAT THE FEET? Common waterproof boots keep the perspiration in as well as the water out, and perspiration that finds its way through leather is kept in the rubber boot. This renders the sock wet, and, when the wearer ceases walking, causes the cold clammy feeling which is so objectionable and unhealthy.

THE HANNAFORD VENTILATED
RUBBER BOOT,

while it is waterproof and as warm as any boot made, provides a way for the perspiration to escape; at each step the foul air is forced out of the boot, and when the weight of the body is removed from the compressible top sole, fresh air is admitted to the foot; thus the sock is kept free from the moisture which causes the feet to become cold, sore, and tender. Send for circular.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

HINDS' BLACK-FLY CREAM,
For Repelling
Flies, Mosquitoes, Midges and other Insects, and protecting the Skin from Sunburn, Irritation and Infection.

No Tar. No Stain.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 15, 1884.
Mr. A. S. Hinds, Portland, Me.:
DEAR SIR—I have not sooner acknowledged the receipt of box of "Black-Fly Cream," as I desired to first test it; this I have now done on two fishing trips where I found the Mosquitoes, Black Flies, Punkies and Moose or Deer Flies in great abundance. Although all these pests swarmed about me, I found the Cream a perfect preventive against their bites when it was applied to face, hands, ears and neck. For many years I have sought after the insect repellent, and have tried all manner of compounds but yours is the most thorough, at the same time cleanly and not disagreeable.
Yours truly, A. NELSON CHENEY.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, if rod should get wet. Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9½ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.35; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs,

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Use W. W. Greener's Guns at the Trap and in the Field.

These popular guns show extraordinary superiority in killing powers. At the Grand International Pigeon Shooting Tournament, London, England, 1885, W. W. Greener's guns head the list in the average of scored birds, as the following extract from the "Field," July 11, 1885, shows:

Maker's Name.	Birds shot at.	Proportion of Kills.
W. W. Greener,	148	81·8 per cent.
Baker,	340	77·6 "
Dougall,	72	76·4 "
Purdey,	1120	72·9 "
Cogswell & Harrison,	51	72·5 per cent.
Stephen Grant,	235	71·9 "
Reilly	330	71·2 "

W. W. Greener's guns AVERAGING MORE THAN FOUR PER CENT. MORE KILLS than those of any London maker. In individual scores the percentage of birds scored by Mr. Grace with a Greener gun was 84·3 per cent. of the birds shot at.

THE UNIVERSAL CHAMPIONSHIP, contested for at Monaco this year by the best amateur shots of all nations, was won with a Greener Hammerless Gun. Mr. Trecastle first, with a Greener gun, 24 kills out of 25; Mr. Blake with a Greener gun third, 23 kills out of 25; Mr. Grace with a Greener gun fourth, 23 kills out of 25.

Without taking account of the prizes won in the United States, the following are some of the more important events that have fallen to W. W. Greener's guns this year:

Prix de Consolation Monte Carlo, 1886
President's Trophy, Grympie (Queensland), 1st and 2d tied at 40 birds without a miss.
The Australian Cup, 48 birds without a miss. £600 won.
Hamilton, Canada, $1,000.
Melbourne Trophy.
Sandhurst Winter Handicap.
New South Wales Inter-Colonial Stakes, 1st, 2d and 3d.
Messina Summer Cup.
Ranelagh Cup, Barn Elms.
The "Star Prize," London Gun Club.
Gun Club Challenge Cup, London.
Club Fund Cup, London.
First in 12 sweepstakes at London. Second prizes too numerous to enumerate here.
At a gun trial at Leavenworth, 1886, a Greener 12-bore gun beat fifty English and American guns, some of them 10 bores.
Eighteen exhibition medals. First prizes at all London gun trials since 1875.

The W. W. Greener Trap Gun, - $65
The Greener Hammerless Gun, from 100
The "Far-Killing" Duck Gun, - $100

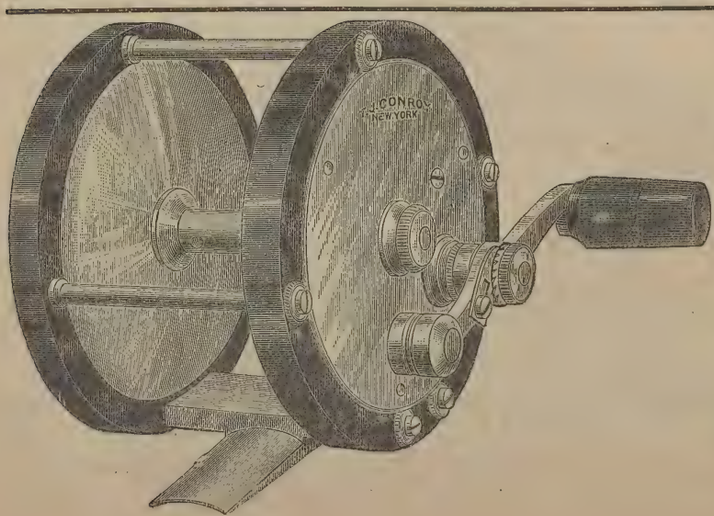
GENUINE IMPORTED
RUSSIAN DOGSKIN JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine dog skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.



All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN DOGSKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

A 1 Quality, Genuine Russian Skins, Black or Tan Color, $18.00
A Quality, American Skins, Tan Color..... 15.00
B Quality, American Skins, Black Color, $10.00
C Quality, American Skins, Black Color, 8.00

Sent by registered mail, postpaid, to any part of the U. S. on receipt of price. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

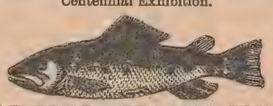
Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."



A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by
REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.

These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, if rod should get wet Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished. This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with cane and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden," and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9½ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.25; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. Gunmaking and repairing of all kinds by competent workmen. New Illustrated Catalogue in colors now ready, and sent free on application.

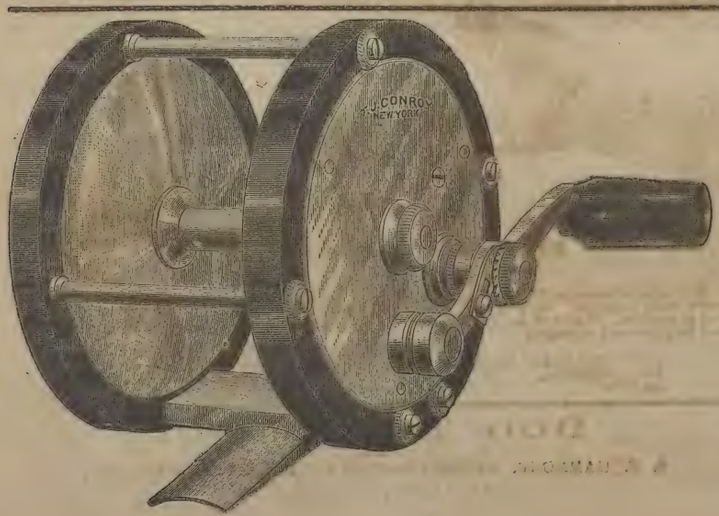
GENUINE IMPORTED
RUSSIAN DOGSKIN JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine dog skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.



All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN DOGSKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Specimen Pages Free on Application.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1858, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

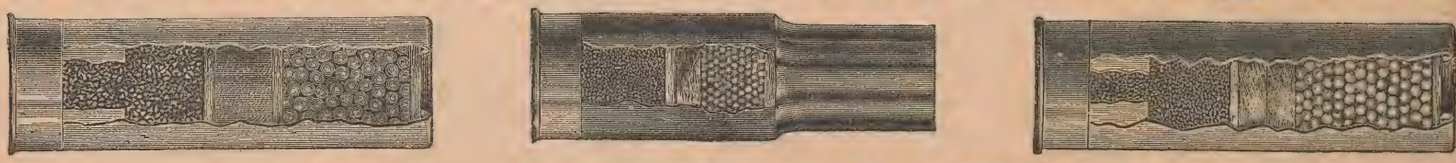
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.



These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

Use W. W. Greener's Guns at the Trap and in the Field.

These popular guns show extraordinary superiority in killing powers. At the Grand International Pigeon Shooting Tournament, London, England, 1885, W. W. Greener's guns head the list in the average of scored birds, as the following extract from the "Field," July 11, 1885, shows:

Maker's Name.	Birds shot at.	Proportion of Kills.
W. W. Greener,	148	81·8 per cent.
Baker,	340	77·6 "
Dougall,	72	76·4 "
Purdey,	1120	72·9 "
Cogswell & Harrison,	51	72·5 per cent.
Stephen Grant,	235	71·9 "
Reilly	330	71·2 "

W. W. Greener's guns AVERAGING MORE THAN FOUR PER CENT. MORE KILLS than those of any London maker. In individual scores the percentage of birds scored by Mr. Grace with a Greener gun was 84·3 per cent. of the birds shot at.

THE UNIVERSAL CHAMPIONSHIP, contested for at Monaco this year by the best amateur shots of all nations, was won with a Greener Hammerless Gun. Mr. Trecastle first, with a Greener gun, 24 kills out of 25; Mr. Blake with a Greener gun third, 23 kills out of 25; Mr. Grace with a Greener gun fourth, 23 kills out of 25.

Without taking account of the prizes won in the United States, the following are some of the more important events that have fallen to W. W. Greener's guns this year:

Prix de Consolation, Monte Carlo, 1886
President's Trophy, Grympie (Queensland), 1st and 2d tied at 40 birds without a miss.
The Australian Cup, 48 birds without a miss. £600 won.

GENUINE IMPORTED

RUSSIAN DOGSKIN JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine dog skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN DOGSKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

A 1 Quality, Genuine Russian Skins, Black or Tan Color, $18.00
A Quality, American Skins, Tan Color..... ..... 15.00
B Quality, American Skins, Black Color, $10.00
C Quality, American Skins, Black Color, 8.00

Sent by registered mail, postpaid, to any part of the U. S. on receipt of price. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

P. S.—As we are the only importers in the United States of GENUINE RUSSIAN DOGSKINS, they cannot be found at any other house in this country

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

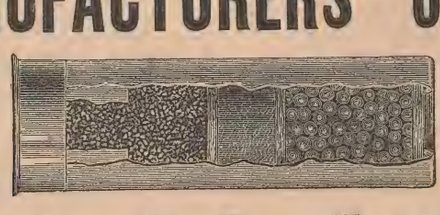
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.



These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

ELKHART Ill., Feb 13, 1884.

J. C. Petmecky:
DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.
CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr J. C. Petmecky:
DEAR SIR I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,
CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:
DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner" After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,
DR. W. J CARVER.

CRUTTENDEN FLY ROD.

It has Nickle Plated Patented Solid Reel Plate which prevents Reel getting fast by swelling of wood, if rod should get wet Full Nickle Plated, Patented Ferrules, allowing the wood to be used the full size, thus preventing rod breaking where wood and ferrules join. Metal Tennons which prevent joints getting stuck together. The entire rod is made from the best selected lancewood, left natural color, varnished and polished This makes a handsome finish, and is less liable to be seen by the wary fish than a dark rod. The butt is wound with carmine and silk in an artistic manner, which not only gives it the appearance, but also the feeling of the high priced rods. The complete rod has a look of beauty, which is a joy to every fisherman's heart while using it. It is well and neatly ringed throughout, and has an extra winding between each ring. There has been so many rods made of an inferior quality that resemble this, that all from this date will have stamped on reel plate "W. H. Cruttenden." and none genuine unless so stamped. Length, 10½ft; weight, 9¼ to 10ozs. All the parts are interchangeable, and if, by accident, any part should get broken, can send duplicate without rod being returned. The best made rod in the United States, and we will guarantee it in every way. With short tip it makes an excellent bass rod. Sent to any part of U. S. in case, 1 bass, 1 trout tip, prepaid, for $5.35; bass tips, $1.00; trout tips, $1.25. General agent for Card's Rotating Trap. Guns, Pistols and Fishing Tackle. GENUINE IMPORTED
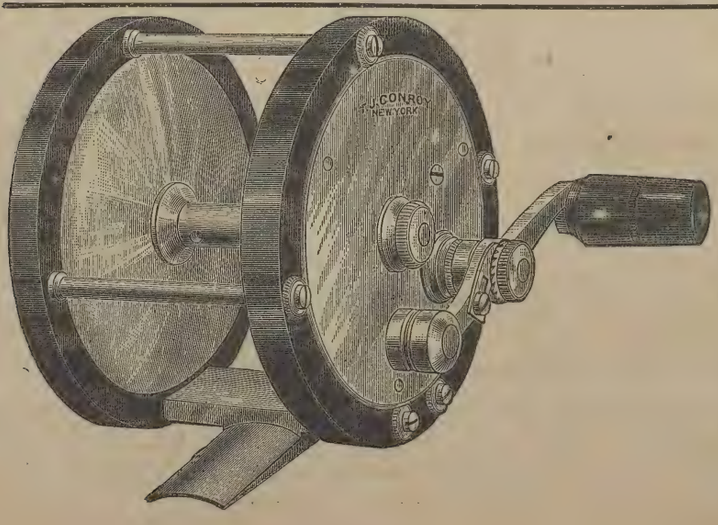
RUSSIAN DOGSKIN JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine dog skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.



All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN DOGSKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

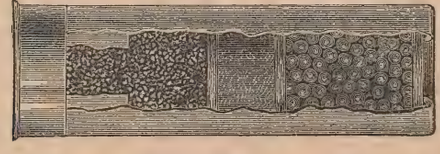
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.



These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:

DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

Use W. W. Greener's Guns at the Trap and in the Field.

These popular guns show extraordinary superiority in killing powers. At the Grand International Pigeon Shooting Tournament, London, England, 1885, W. W. Greener's guns head the list in the average of scored birds, as the following extract from the "Field," July 11, 1885, shows:

Maker's Name.	Birds shot at.	Proportion of Kills.
W. W. Greener,	148	81·8 per cent.
Baker,	340	77·6 "
Dougall,	72	76·4 "
Purdey,	1120	72·9 "
Cogswell & Harrison,	51	72·5 per cent.
Stephen Grant,	235	71·9 "
Reilly	330	71·2 "

W. W. Greener's guns AVERAGING MORE THAN FOUR PER CENT. MORE KILLS than those of any London maker. In individual scores the percentage of birds scored by Mr. Grace with a Greener gun was 84·3 per cent. of the birds shot at.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by

REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.

These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

ELKHART, Ill., Feb. 13, 1884.

J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

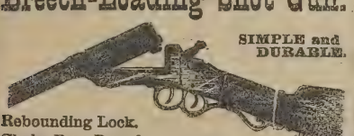
GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.



Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:

DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

The following are the gentlemen: D. C. Powers, Cleveland, O.; Andy Meaders, Nashville, Tenn.; H. McMurchy, Syracuse, N. Y.; Fred Erb, Jr., La Fayette, Ind.; J. C. Hendershot, Cleveland, O.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

Mr. John M. Tracy has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee,	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
On the Grouse Moor, -	- - Emperor Fred
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota, -	Dash III. and Countess May

Kennel Record and Account Book.

The Kennel Record and Account Book consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Specimen Pages Free on Application.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

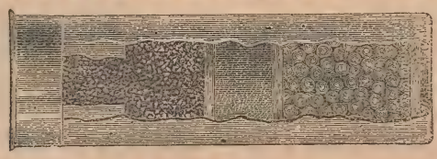
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.



These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

What the Champions of the World Say:

ELKHART, Ill., Feb. 13, 1884.

J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

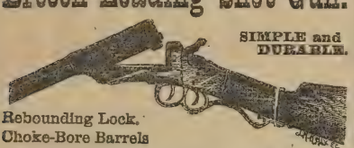
Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:



DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

DR. W. J. CARVER,

Use W. W. Greener's Guns at the Trap and in the Field.

These popular guns show extraordinary superiority in killing powers. At the Grand International Pigeon Shooting Tournament, London, England, 1885, W. W. Greener's guns head the list in the average of scored birds, as the following extract from the "Field," July 11, 1885, shows:

Maker's Name.	Birds shot at.	Proportion of Kills.
W. W. Greener,	148	81·8 per cent.
Baker,	340	77·6 "
Dougall,	72	76·4 "
Purdey,	1120	72·9 "
Cogswell & Harrison,	51	72·5 per cent.
Stephen Grant,	235	71·9 "
Reilly	330	71·2 "

W. W. Greener's guns AVERAGING MORE THAN FOUR PER CENT. MORE KILLS than those of any London maker. In individual scores the percentage of birds scored by Mr. Grace with a Greener gun was 84·3 per cent. of the birds shot at.

THE UNIVERSAL CHAMPIONSHIP, contested for at Monaco this year by the best amateur shots of all nations, was won with a Greener Hammerless Gun. Mr. Trecastle first, with a Greener gun, 24 kills out of 25; Mr. Blake with a Greener gun third, 23 kills out of 25; Mr. Grace with a Greener gun fourth, 23 kills out of 25.

Without taking account of the prizes won in the United States, the following are some of the more important events that have fallen to W. W. Greener's guns this year:

Prix de Consolation. Monte Carlo, 1886
President's Trophy, Grympie (Queensland), 1st and 2d tied at 40 birds without a miss.
The Australian Cup, 48 birds without a miss. £600 won.
Hamilton, Canada, $1,000.
Melbourne Trophy.
Sandhurst Winter Handicap.
New South Wales Inter-Colonial Stakes, 1st, 2d and 3d.
Messina Summer Cup.
Ranelagh Cup, Barn Elms.
The "Star Prize," London Gun Club.
Gun Club Challenge Cup, London.
Club Fund Cup, London.
First in 12 sweepstakes at London. Second prizes too numerous to enumerate here.
At a gun trial at Leavenworth, 1886, a Greener 12-bore gun beat fifty English and American guns, some of them 10-bores.
Eighteen exhibition medals. First prizes at all London gun trials since 1875.

The W. W. Greener Trap Gun, - $65
The Greener Hammerless Gun, from 100
The "Far-Killing" Duck Gun, - $100

LEATHER JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN SKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithful portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee.	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess Mav
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America
We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.
Any of these plates if framed would make a
Superb Ornament
For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.
There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.
These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

What the Champions of the World Say:

ELKHART, Ill., Feb. 13, 1884.

J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have used your cleaner and find it one of the best I ever used, and I think it will take the place of all other cleaners.

CAPT. A. H. BOGARDUS.

GAINSVILLE, Ark., May 5, 1884.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky:

DEAR SIR—I have just received the two gun cleaners, and I admire them very much. They are the best thing I have ever seen. I have tried almost everything imaginable, but this simple invention after using it has become indispensable with me. For removing lead on the interior of gun barrels I am quite certain its equal has not yet been produced. Most truly yours,

CAPT. E. E. STUBBS.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 31, 1885.

Mr. J. C. Petmecky, Austin, Tex.:

DEAR SIR—At my recent shoot in your city it afforded me pleasure to speak of the merits of your late invention, the "Petmecky Gun Cleaner." After trying all others I find it the best, and cheerfully recommend it to all sportsmen. I remain, yours truly,

DR. W. J. CARVER.

LEATHER JACKETS.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.
Translated by
REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee.	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Quail Shooting in Neversink Valley,	Croxteth and Sensation

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America
We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1856, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.
Any of these plates if framed would make a
Superb Ornament
For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.
There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.
These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

N. B.---W. W. Greener's Guns Headed the List with a Substantial Majority in 1885.

Extract from page 312, Badminton Library. "Moor and Marsh." The Gun and its Development, with Notes on Shooting. By W. W. Greener.

"This is the most comprehensive modern work we have in our language dealing with guns. Not only does it treat fully of the very earliest arms known, commencing with bows and arrows, but it is equally accurate and exhaustive in regard to all recent inventions in gun-making. Every kind of sport to be had with the gun is here also described and commented on in a practical and interesting, though very condensed, manner, and the gunning to be done, or expected, in every corner of the globe is well described in Mr. Greener's admirably written book. Every gun worth mentioning, with its mechanism, is fully and carefully engraved and explained for those who care for the technicalities of gun-making.

"We would strongly recommend this capital treatise to all who own a gun, not only as a most useful adjunct to their sport, but as the best of tutors in the matter of all that has to do with firearms of every description, large or small, from swivel guns to cripple-stoppers and 20-bores, and from elephant to rook rifles.

"Among the mass of useful information on shooting contained in this large work of over 700 pages, wildfowl shooting is very fairly, though briefly described and illustrated. We consider Mr. Greener's work a wonderful example of care, patience and ingenuity; that this is also the opinion of the general public is evidenced by the fact of its third edition being so soon called for.

This book, the best ever published on Gunnery, offered for $2.50 by

HENRY C. SQUIRES, 178 Broadway, New York,

Agent for W. W. Greener's Guns.

LEATHER JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN SKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

A 1 Quality, Genuine Russian Skins, Black or Tan Color, $18.00
A Quality, American Skins, Tan Color..... ..... 15.00
B Quality, American Skins, Black Color, $10.00
C Quality, American Skins, Black Color, 8.00

Sent by registered mail, postpaid, to any part of the U. S. on receipt of price. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

P. S.—As we are the only importers in the United States of GENUINE RUSSIAN SKINS, they cannot be found at any other house in this country.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.
Translated by
REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

THE NEW L. C. SMITH
HAMMERLESS GUN.

This new gun embodies all the essential features of our hammer gun, together with a new oscillating cocking mechanism and automatic and independent safety combined. This gun is not equalled in ease of manipulation, symmetry, durability and shooting qualities by any hammerless gun made.

Of the eleven gentlemen who broke 100 straight inanimate targets for a place in the Chamberlin Cartridge Tournament prizes, five of them used the "L. C. Smith" gun. The following are the gentlemen: D. C. Powers, Cleveland, O.; Andy Meaders, Nashville, Tenn.; H. McMurchy, Syracuse, N. Y.; Fred Erb, Jr., La Fayette, Ind.; J. C. Hendershot, Cleveland, O.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee.	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Quail Shooting in Neversink Valley,	Croxteth and Sensation

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America
We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1859, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.
Any of these plates if framed would make a
Superb Ornament
For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.
There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.
These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

N. B.---W. W. Greener's Guns Headed the List with a Substantial Majority in 1885.

Extract from page 312, Badminton Library. "Moor and Marsh." The Gun and its Development, with Notes on Shooting. By W. W. Greener.

"This is the most comprehensive modern work we have in our language dealing with guns. Not only does it treat fully of the very earliest arms known, commencing with bows and arrows, but it is equally accurate and exhaustive in regard to all recent inventions in gun-making. Every kind of sport to be had with the gun is here also described and commented on in a practical and interesting, though very condensed, manner, and the gunning to be done, or expected, in every corner of the globe is well described in Mr. Greener's admirably written book. Every gun worth mentioning, with its mechanism, is fully and carefully engraved and explained for those who care for the technicalities of gun-making.

"We would strongly recommend this capital treatise to all who own a gun, not only as a most useful adjunct to their sport, but as the best of tutors in the matter of all that has to do with firearms of every description, large or small, from swivel guns to cripple-stoppers and 20-bores, and from elephant to rook rifles.

"Among the mass of useful information on shooting contained in this large work of over 700 pages, wildfowl shooting is very fairly, though briefly described and illustrated. We consider Mr. Greener's work a wonderful example of care, patience and ingenuity; that this is also the opinion of the general public is evidenced by the fact of its third edition being so soon called for.

This book, the best ever published on Gunnery, offered for $2.50 by

HENRY C. SQUIRES, 178 Broadway, New York,

LEATHER JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN SKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

A 1 Quality, Genuine Russian Skins, Black or Tan Color, $18.00

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." The Value of Woodlands as Reservoirs.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.
Translated by
REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee.	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Quail Shooting in Neversink Valley,	Croxteth and Sensation

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

Swiss St. Bernards to the Front.

At the late St. Bernard Show held in England in December, 1886, the Swiss Smooth Coated Dog "Guide," won the challenge cup, beating all the St. Bernards in the show rough or smooth, including the great "Plinlimmon" and "Prince Battenburg." I have the full sister to "Guide" (same litter) "Flora II," imported from Switzerland last year, she is a noted prize winner here already, is very large and handsome. I am ready to book orders for puppies out of her, sired by my Champion Swiss Dog "Apollo," this combination of the two best Swiss Strains should produce exceedingly fine pups of great size, of true St. Bernard character, prices will be moderate, and puppies will be delivered in the early spring, can be spoken for now and paid for when taken. I have in my Kennels some of the best stock in Switzerland, having purchased Mr. Hy. Schumacher's Kennel. I have unequalled facilities for importing, having the far-famed judge, Mr. Schumacher, to select them. In England, Mr. Sydney W. Smith will make selections. I have some fine young females that can be purchased for reasonable figures, and will be pleased to correspond with any interested in the St. Bernard Dog.

AUDUBON'S
Birds of America

We have obtained and now offer for sale singly a number of the plates of this magnificent work. These plates are the originals of the edition of 1855, and represent the birds as life size. The sheets are elephant folio, and the paper heavy. The drawings were made from nature, and for accuracy of delineation, fidelity to detail and accessories,

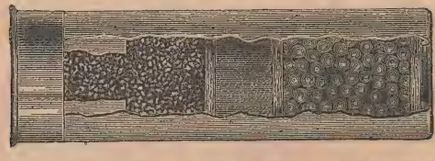
Audubon's Birds have never been equalled.

Any of these plates if framed would make a

Superb Ornament

For a sportsman's dining room, and no more beautiful and appropriate gift could be found for the lover of nature than one of these. The constantly increasing scarcity of this work makes these large plates each year more valuable. Some of the plates are double and can if desired be cut in two and put in small frames.

There are represented many species of Ducks, Gulls, Grouse, Snipe, Heron and small birds almost without number.



These plates are so large that they cannot be sent by mail without danger of being crushed, and the best method of sending them will be on rollers by express.

LEATHER JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN SKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

CANOE HANDLING.

By C. B. VAUX ("DOT").

A complete manual for the management of a canoe. The author begins at the very beginning, describes and explains the rudiments in the simplest and plainest way possible. Everything is made intelligible for beginners: and besides this A B C teaching there are so many hints and wrinkles that the oldest canoeist afloat will find pleasure and profit in the study of these. The book is complete and concise—no useless duffle between its covers. The subjects treated are the choice of a canoe, paddling, sailing, care of the canoe, recipes and rules. The text is further elucidated by numerous practical drawings, and the beauty of the book is enhanced by the many ornamental vignettes. Pages 168; uniform with "Canoe Building." Price, postpaid, $1.00.

BEING THE LES ÉTUDES DE MAITRE PIERRE SUR L'AGRICULTURE ET LES FORETS.

PAR M. ANTONIN ROUSSET.

Translated by
REV. S. W. POWELL.

The introduction reviews the extraordinary movement of torrent taming in France, in preparing public sentiment for which the Studies of Master Peter played a noteworthy part. The book was written as a sort of science primer, setting forth the first principles of the relations existing between woodlands and agriculture. The principles and reasoning are not less applicable to the United States to-day than to France then.

Canoe and Camp Cookery.

By "SENECA."

A practical cook book for canoeists, Corinthian sailors and outers. Practical because the author gives explicit and intelligible directions for preparing such dishes as he has himself actually tested in camp and on a cruise. This is just where the recipes differ from the absurdly impracticable dishes given in some so-called camp cookery books. The cooking outfit is described, and numerous hints on camp economy add to the value of the work. Cloth, 96 pages. Price $1.00.

The following are the gentlemen: D. C. Powers, Cleveland, O.; Andy Meaders, Nashville, Tenn.; H. McMurchy, Syracuse, N. Y.; Fred Erb, Jr., La Fayette, Ind.; J. C. Hendershot, Cleveland, O.

Pictures of the Field.

Phototypes of the Pictures by John M. Tracy.

MR. JOHN M. TRACY has won a reputation for his faithfu portraits of dogs and his beautiful and sympathetic delineations of the incidents of the field. All the poetry and grace of a pointer or setter in the stubble have been caught with the eye of the artist and the enthusiasm of the sportsman, and transferred to the living canvas with a skill which has given Mr. Tracy a name above that of any other American artist in the same field.

We have for sale a series of admirable phototypes (photographs in printer's ink), of these paintings, which preserve with admirable fidelity the spirit of the originals. The phototypes are 15x20 inches. They are as follows:

Title of Picture.	Name of Dog or Dogs.
Quail Shooting in Tennessee.	Gladstone and Peep o' Day
Prairie Chicken Shooting in Minnesota,	Dash III. and Countess May
On the Grouse Moor,	Emperor Fred
Quail Shooting in Neversink Valley,	Croxteth and Sensation

Kennel Record and Account Book.

THE KENNEL RECORD AND ACCOUNT BOOK consists of a series of carefully prepared blank entry forms for the use of the breeder. Pages are devoted to the registration of pedigrees, the record of stud visits, whelps, sales, prize winnings, receipts and expenses, and other memoranda, the great practical utility and permanent value of which are recognized by every experienced breeder. Ample provision is also made for recording other minor transactions, which may at the time appear trivial, but afterwards prove of the highest importance. There are few breeders, even among those most systematic in preserving records of their Kennel transactions, who have not repeatedly felt the need of just such a detailed series of memoranda as that provided in the Kennel Record.

In the preparation of the blank forms, and in the arrangement of the book, special care has been taken to facilitate convenience both in making the entries and in subsequent reference to them. It is hoped that with such a book at their command, breeders may generally adopt a more careful system of record than they have been accustomed to preserve. 200 pages (size 9x11½ in.), price $3. Sent postpaid by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company.

N. B.---W. W. Greener's Guns Headed the List with a Substantial Majority in 1885.

Extract from page 312, Badminton Library. "Moor and Marsh." The Gun and its Development, with Notes on Shooting. By W. W. Greener.

"This is the most comprehensive modern work we have in our language dealing with guns. Not only does it treat fully of the very earliest arms known, commencing with bows and arrows, but it is equally accurate and exhaustive in regard to all recent inventions in gun-making. Every kind of sport to be had with the gun is here also described and commented on in a practical and interesting, though very condensed, manner, and the gunning to be done, or expected, in every corner of the globe is well described in Mr. Greener's admirably written book. Every gun worth mentioning, with its mechanism, is fully and carefully engraved and explained for those who care for the technicalities of gun-making.

"We would strongly recommend this capital treatise to all who own a gun, not only as a most useful adjunct to their sport, but as the best of tutors in the matter of all that has to do with firearms of every description, large or small, from swivel guns to cripple-stoppers and 20-bores, and from elephant to rook rifles.

"Among the mass of useful information on shooting contained in this large work of over 700 pages, wildfowl shooting is very fairly, though briefly described and illustrated. We consider Mr. Greener's work a wonderful example of care, patience and ingenuity; that this is also the opinion of the general public is evidenced by the fact of its third edition being so soon called for.

This book, the best ever published on Gunnery, offered for $2.50 by

LEATHER JACKETS.

Impervious to Wind and Water. Soft and Pliable as the Finest Kid Glove.

Genuine Russian skins (unlike sheep skins) are not affected by water. Being very pliable they fit close to the person, and offer the most complete protection from the cold and penetrating winds of winter. Our best quality jackets will last a lifetime, it being almost impossible to wear one out, thus making it the cheapest winter garment one can secure. They are so light weight and take up so little room that one can be worn between the vest and undercoat, thus rendering a heavy overcoat entirely unnecessary even in the coldest weather. For driving, horseback riding, skating, sleighing and hunting in cold climates they are extensively used. For Duck and Coot Shooting they are indispensable.

All who wish to secure a GENUINE RUSSIAN SKIN should order it immediately before we get out of sizes, as but a limited number of the genuine article can be obtained each year. In ordering send measure around chest.

A 1 Quality, Genuine Russian Skins, Black or Tan Color, $18.00
